Agitation is one of the most challenging behaviors for caregivers and health professionals supporting someone with dementia. In this insightful session, Dr. Nestor H. Praderio will explain the common causes of agitation—including medical, emotional, and environmental triggers—and offer practical strategies to de-escalate tension, promote safety, and improve communication.

Whether you're a physician, nurse, student, or family caregiver, you'll walk away with a deeper understanding of how to approach agitation with empathy and confidence.
